

Summary:

In our current society technological advance are being made at a rapid progress, with the advancement of ai having a major incline over the last decade risking job security and the livelihood of citizens all around. Through our storyline we wanted to depict the vulnerability of software and how even the strongest protected technology is able to be compromised

Flyer:

The Threat of Autonomous weapons

Is this the future you want?

Welcome to a world that has been overrun autonomous weapons, where their code dictate the fate of humanity Control of these unmanned weapons has been seized through the infiltrations of our systems during a routine software update

The streets have now morphed into a battleground for survival with overturn cars and sandbags littering the streets in hopes of keeping civilians presence undetected.